Pass on Amendments.

In addition to electing congressment and state officers several states will pass on constitutional amendments. The voters of Arkansas will have before them an amendment to provide for the electment or rejection by the people at the polls of legislative measures, laws and threadments to the constitution, independent of the general assembly.

Alabama will vote on an extension of credit of the state for the development of the port of Mobile. The proposed of Florida will ballot on an amendment authorizing reapportionment of the state in accordance with population to change.

NEW YORK, Nov. 6.—The country stood on the brink of a national slection today with every surface ndication pointing to continued control of congress by the republicans for another two years—although by Freatly reduced majorities.

Nothing short of a political mirable can take control or the senate tway from the republican Even the democrats admit this, although they hope to reduce slightly the present republican majority of 24.

Slim Chance in House.

There is, in the opinion of most ambiased political observers, a possibility that the house of representatives will be taken away from the republicans tomorrow, but the possibility that the house of representatives will be taken away from the femocratic national committee, contented himself today with a final prediction that the "democratic victory will be greater and more widespread" than previously thought, but he judiciously refrained from claiming control of either house.

May Win Many Back.

It is in the great states like New York, Ohlo, Indiana and New Jersey that the democrats figure to make their chief gains. In all these states the outlook 24 hours in advance of the opening of the polls is that many congressional districts will be wen back by the democrats.

Ohlo, for instance, has a solid republican delegation of 22 in the present house. The democrats claim is of these tomorrow and republican delegate are inclined to believe that they will pick up nearly that many indiana has a solid republican delegation of 13 and the democrats claim a majority of these, Missouri has 14 republicans and two democrats in the present house and it would not be surprising to see the political lineup completely reversed.

Marietta College Puts W. Va., Wesleyan Down NEGROES TRICKED BY SPELLBINDERS

Discover Speakers in the Woodpile at So-Called "Free Dance"

Four hundred unsuspecting negroes-200 couples-attended a tree dance at Dixie hall on Greenwood avenue last night-and discovered they had been made the victims of a cruel joke.

It was a democratic political meeting, and the free dance was only a ture to get them into the hall to listen to election eve speakers—whose words fell on deaf ears.

M. A. Breckenridge succeeded in shouting a few words lound enough to reach a dozen or more of the dancers; Bod Senford, democratic nomines for sheriff, whose vocal attainments match his 225 pounds of avordupous, had a little better success, but Errol Joyce, after several futile attempts gave up the task and lumped down from the speaker's

District Judge Albert C. Hunt and E. R. Howard, congressional nonlines, who arrived late from a meeting in West Tulsa where they addressed fully 20 voters, quickly abandoned their intention of speaking when they witnessed the failure of Joyce to voice his plea.

"By their fruits ye shall know them," Breckenridge quoted to the negroes in commending Walton to their attention. "Ask any colored man from Oklahoma City if Jack Walton isn't a friend of the colored man." Breckenridge admitted without hesitation that Walten's friendship for the negro is much

"I'm proud of the colored men who are my friends," he feelingly proclaimed.
